Run the Main class to run the application. I used intellij to run and build the applications.

When running the application depending on if the user has defined images or not will determine if buttons on the stage will be enabled.
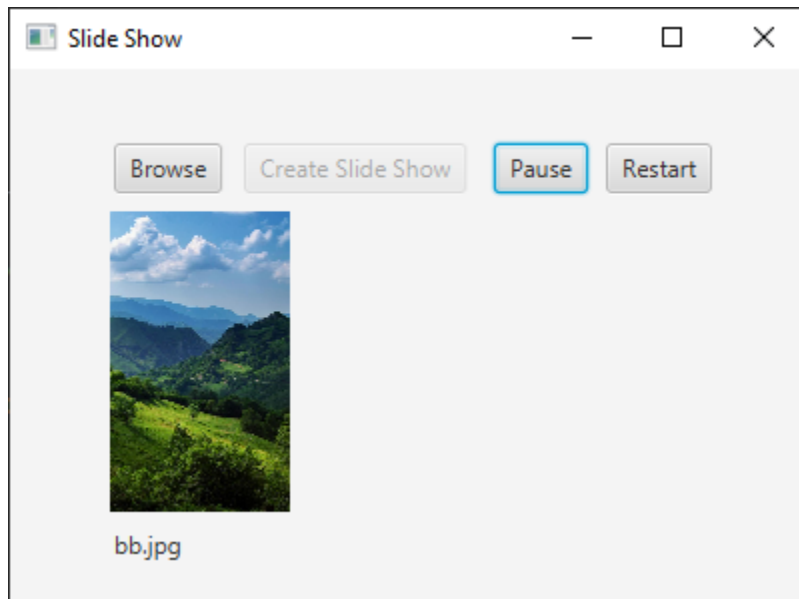

When the application compiles and runs the UI will look like:

Select the browse button to find the jpegs you would like to create a slideshow of:

After pressing open in the select images dialog press the Create Slide Show:

You will be able to select the pause or restart buttons.
